VOL. II. NO. 228.

CHICAGO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1896.

PRICE, 5 CTS

THE MISSOURI DECISION.

The Missouri Supreme Court decision of last Tuesday on the Walsh case was a sweeping one. All the judges on the bench concurred with the decision handed down by Justice Sherwood. The main points of the decision as delivered by Judge Sherwood, were as follows:

The paramount issue presented by the record in this case may take the form of the question: Is the act just quoted constitutional? It will be noted that the act does this:

First, it makes it punishable as a misdemeanor for any person who within this State keeps any room, etc., and who occupies the same with any book, instrument or device for the purpose of recording bets, etc., or selling pools upon the result of any trial or contest of skill, speed, etc., of man or beast, which is to be made or take place within or without this State.

Second, a misdemeanor for any person who thus records such bets, etc., or sells pools, etc.

Third, a misdemeanor for any owner, lessee or occupant of any room, etc., knowingly to permit the same to be used, etc., for any of the purposes aforesaid.

Fourth, a misdemeanor for such person to keep in such room, etc., any device or exhibits, etc., for the purpose of recording bets, etc.

Fifth, a misdemeanor for any one to become the custodian of any money, etc., which is staked, wagered or pledged contrary to the provisions of the act.

"The act thus creates five different kinds of misdemeanors, while a proviso, in the same section which creates these offences, prohibits such a construction of the act as to make it unlawful for any person to register bets, make books, sell pools or bet upon any trial or contest of speed of a horse or between horses on the premises or within the limits or inclosure of a regular race course on which such a contest of speed is had at and prior to the time thereof.

It is a rule of long established construction in this State, a rule so well settled that it admits no contravention. "that a statute which relates to persons or things as a class is a general law, while a statute which relates to particular persons or things of a class is special." State vs. Tolle, 71 Mo. 645; State vs. Hermann, 75 Mo. 340; State vs. Julow, 129 Mo. 163.

In the case last cited, it was ruled that while the Legislature might legislate in regard to a class of persons, yet that they would not be permitted to take what might be termed a natural class of persons, split that class in two, and then arbitrarily designate the disaffected fractions of the original unit as two classes, and thereupon enact different rules for the government of each. This is precisely what has been done in the case at bar; the act bestows protection on all who pay their calling and reap their financial harvests inside the precincts of a regular race course, and inflicts punishment on all who do likewise outside of those artificial boundaries.

If such an act as that being discussed can stand the test of judicial scrutiny, then the above recited provisions of section 53 aforesaid, relative to the prohibition against granting by special law any special or exclusive right, privilege or immunity will have been ordained in vain. Nay, more, if such legislation as that here presented could be sanctioned, then it would be an easy legislative task to provide for the punishment of robbery, arson, murder, indeed the whole category of crimes, with a proviso that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prohibit or make it unlawful for any person "to rob, burn or murder," "on the premises or within the limits or inclosure of a regular race course, etc."

And the fact that the present statute only creates a certain misdemeanor, and provides punishment therefor and exemption therefrom, does not effect the principle here announced and involved, nor enlarge the powers of the Legislature in this behalf. In a word, it is quite beyond the power of the Legislature to enact even a general law for the punishment of a crime all over the State, and then make that same criminal act nonpunishable if perpetrated in certain favored localities. Nor can the act in question be rescued from judicial condemnation by assuming the label of a mere police regulation. The right of the citizen to constitutional equality, to the equal protection of the law, cannot be trampled under foot under the thin disguise of such an assumed regulation. (State vs. Julow, supra.)

Nor will it do to say that the proviso aforesaid may be disregarded, and defendant still be punished under the previous portion of the section on which this prosecution is based, since it is obvious that the act was enacted as an entirety, and would not have become a law but for the incorporation within it of the obnoxious immunity proviso.

We have been cited to State vs. Burgdorfer,

107, Mo., 1, but that case has no bearing on the case in hand, since the act of 1891 contained no such proviso.

Inasmuch as defendant has been convicted under the provisions of an unconstitutional law, we reverse the judgment and order his discharge. All concur.

Walsh's case was purely within the commission bet line. He did a commission business in 1895 and wired his business to Louisville. All the St. Louis attorneys interested in the case and the racing officials of the various tracks in St. Louis agree that the decision wipes out the 1895 measure which permitted betting on local events. The South Side track operated a foreign book without molestation and upon the strength of the decision Wednesday.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Galen Brown is training the stable of Mr. A. B. Spreckels at San Francisco.

Barney Schreiber has not yet been "located." He is probably on a steamer bound for America at this time.

Highland Park, Detroit, which raced in 1895, is, it is authentically stated, to be made a mile track and used for a race meeting of good class next summer.

St. Simon heads the list of English sires for 1896 and breaks all records. His children won $196,035. Persimmons and St. Frusquin are the chief factors in the list. St. Serf, St. Simon's son, is second on the list with $75,000.

To the end of last week the Avondale Stable with $2,797; G. C. Bennett, $2,403, and the Shamrock Stable, $2,099 led the winning owners at New Orleans. Sherrer with 21 wins and Combs with 13 led the riders.

FIVE MOROCCO FORMS FOR SALE.

There are five copies of the morocco Half Yearly left. It is the finest book of form ever produced. With its flexible covers, specially made, are 1200 pages of charts. Its index is full and complete and on linen paper, with each page indexed by letter for handy use. The book covers American racing from June 1, by charts. The five copies are for sale, with papers to fit into its charts until December 20, at $12 each. Out of town orders are sent prepaid by express.
